Outlook Is Good For Orbital Shot

Cooper Ready, Weather Report Is Optimistic

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper pronounced himself ready and weathermen and scientists gave optimistic endorsements Sunday for his attempt Tuesday to make a record orbital space flight.

Cooper wound up a strenuous day of training for his flight, which could be as long as 575,000 miles in 22 orbits of the globe, with a standard pre-flight physical examination.

During the day the slim space man took part in a simulated space launch, took a sprint on the sandy beach of this sunswet spaceport, attended church services and once again reviewed his flight plan for Tuesday.

The weather for Cooper's flight was reported "shaping up favorably" by Project Mercury meteorologists.

Close Weather Watch
Weathermen were watching the possible Atlantic and Pacific recovery areas especially close for any signs of severe weather that could lead to a delay in the flight, probably the last orbital ride for one man.

Ahead lie trips deeper into space for two and three man teams, all aimed at a journey to the moon this decade.

Scientists and engineers proceeded confidently in their preparation for the launch Tuesday, sometime between the hours of 9 and 11:30 a.m. EDT. The formal countdown begins Monday morning.

One step was to pump more than 73,000 gallons of rocket grade kerosene into the Atlas rocket that will boost the 36-year-old astronaut into space.

Fueling Started Early
The fueling was scheduled for Monday but engineers decided to go ahead today "just to get it out of the way."

"Everything looks so good we just thought we'd go ahead and fuel up today," a source said. Liquid oxygen will be added to the missile the morning of the launch, the fourth in which this country has sent a man into orbit around the earth.

If Cooper's ride goes the full 22 orbits, he is due to splash down after 34 hours in an area near Midway Island in the Pacific. Recovery ships, including the aircraft carrier Kearsarge, already were cruising in the area. Other ships will be deployed in the Atlantic in case the flight ends sooner than planned.

Everest Climbers Leave Base Camp

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Two Americans and three Sherpas left the American Everest expedition's planned as a nine-day climb up the South Col to the 29,028-foot summit and a reunion there with other expedition members approaching from the west ridge.

Plans now call for the two teams to meet on the summit on May 21, instead of May 18 as reported earlier, an expedition spokesman said after receiving radio reports from the expedition.

Setting out from the 17,800-foot base camp for the approach up the traditional South Col route were Barry Bishop of Washington, D.C., and Luther G. Jerstad, of Eugene, Ore.

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic arrived here Sunday for a four-day visit. President Tito embraced and kissed him as he came ashore from his yacht, El Houria (Freedom). This is the 13th meeting of the two presidents.

Steps Taken To Safeguard Racial Truce

President Orders Negotiators Back To Troubled City

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy pledged the federal government Sunday night to preserve order and lives in Birmingham, Ala., and sent troops to bases near the Alabama city for use there if rioting flares again.

Kennedy directed also that preliminary steps be taken to call out the Alabama National Guard if it is needed to cope with the racial outbreaks in the state's biggest city.

Even as Kennedy was speaking in tough language in the White House, informed officials said that troops were moving from outside the state to the Birmingham vicinity.

Negotiators Ordered Back

In the third of three precautionary steps, he ordered federal negotiators back to the troubled city in an effort to save the shaky truce worked out between Negro and white leaders last week.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance and the chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Earle Wheeler, sat in on a long White House conference that preceded Kennedy's announcement.

Persons familiar with what went on said Kennedy had not yet ordered the federalizing at the Alabama National Guard but had directed that the necessary proclamation documents be prepared for signing at any time.

Kennedy appealed to the citizens of Birmingham to keep the peace but declared that "this government will do whatever must be done" to preserve law and order.

Truce Called Fair And Just

Kennedy said the truce agreement reached last week by Negro and white leaders in Birmingham is a fair and just accord. He said that "the federal government will not permit it to be sabotaged by a few extremists" on either side.

Kennedy was speaking in a personal statement in the White House "fish room" before reporters and television and radio operators taping his words for relay to the nation.

The chief executive's statements followed hours of consultations among Justice Department officials headed by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and further discussions in the President's own office.

The President cut short a weekend in the Maryland mountains to rush back to the White House by helicopter to take up the Birmingham crisis in person.

Editor Writes Own Obit Before Dying Of Cancer

BOSTON (AP)—A newspaperman to the end, Winfield S. Brooks, 61, executive editor of the Boston Herald newspaper, wrote his own obituary before he died of cancer Sunday.

Modestly, Brooks—known widely as Win Brooks—wrote but three paragraphs about himself, leaving the pertinent facts of his death to be written by somebody else.

His staff on the Record American thought better of him and built the obituary to 40 inches of type. He also was executive editor of the Sunday Advertiser.

Haiti On Brink Of Joining Reds, Ex-Leader Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Haiti's ex-President Paul E. Magloire said Sunday the small Caribbean nation is teetering dangerously on the brink of becoming the second Communist satellite in the Western Hemisphere.

Magloire (Mah-glawr), 56, said President Francois Duvalier "knows his rule is doomed to destruction and as a last-ditch stand will declare the Haitian republic a Socialist state on either May 15 or May 22." May 15 is the expiration of Duvalier's first six-year term as president.

The man Haitians elected in 1950 as their first popularly chosen president made the statement in a Manhattan apartment that is his home in exile.

In an interview, he said: "Duvalier and the misguided intellectuals in his Cabinet have no idea that by proclaiming Haiti a Socialist country that they are taking the first step in the direction of communism, much in the same manner as Cuba did."

"I don't think Duvalier cares what happens to the country. He knows that if he stays in Haiti, he will become a victim of his own reign of terror and that if he should flee the country—the whole framework of government will crumble."

"No matter what happens—which direction Duvalier takes—it will require extraordinary measures on the part of the United States, the Organization of American States and the United Nations to salvage the remnants of the Haitian government."

Shipwrecked Fisherman Drifts 2 Weeks On Icebox

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Jack Drinan, the skipper of the wrecked prawning trawler Nor 6, reached shore Sunday and told of surviving two weeks at sea on a diet of oranges, raw eggs, and moisture licked from the lid of his makeshift life raft—an icebox.

Drinan, 38, a veteran fisherman from Brisbane, was rescued Saturday by the fishing vessel Sonoma off the lonely, reef-fringed coast of Western Australia near where the Nor 6 ran aground on reefs and sank off Shark Bay, about 500 miles north of Perth.

Showing few effects of the exposure and exhaustion he suffered in his ordeal, Drinan gave this account: While he and two of his three crewmen slept, the Nor 6 foundered shortly before daylight April 24. Drinan plunged into the water and saw two of his crewmen surface also, but they drifted away in the darkness.

As the trawler sank, the 7 by 8-foot icebox broke loose, and Drinan grabbed for it. As he drifted seaward on it, he heard voices on the shore.

For two days Drinan perched atop the icebox, then broke a hole in one of the 3-foot compartments and climbed in. Each morning he licked moisture that had condensed on the icebox lid. He salvaged 20 oranges and 9 raw eggs from the icebox, but salt water ruined the other food in it.

Most of the time Drinan concentrated on bailing sea water out of the icebox with his shirt. Once a freighter heading north passed within 200 yards of him but did not answer his hails.

Where Rioters Struck In Birmingham

Ruins were still smoldering yesterday at the corner of 15th St. and 6th Ave. in Birmingham, Ala., following rioting in the Negro section. Looting and arson was triggered by two bombings of Negro establishments. At least 50 persons were hospitalized as the result of the rioting. Last night President Kennedy alerted Military forces for possible action. (AP Photofax)

China President Hits "K" Policy Of Coexistence

TOKYO (AP)—President Liu Shao-chi of Red China Sunday rapped Premier Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence and assured Communist North Viet Nam of full support in the guerrilla war against the South Vietnamese government.

"Peaceful coexistence must not be used to abolish the Socialist countries' duty of supporting the revolutionary struggles of the oppressed nations and people," Liu told a mass rally in Hanoi, North Viet Nam.

Liu is ending a tour of four Southeast Asian countries. He addressed a crowd of 200,000 in the North Vietnamese capital. The New China News Agency carried the text of Liu's speech in a broadcast heard in Tokyo.

The Red Chinese chief of state's remarks, which did not name Khrushchev, spelled out once again Peking's hardest line. They came a few days after the Communist had proposed to send two high party officials to Moscow in mid-June to discuss ideological differences.

"The foreign policy of Socialist countries," Liu declared, "must not be reduced to the single aspect of peaceful coexistence."

During the height of the recent Moscow-Peking flareup over ideological issues, the Chinese have charged Khrushchev was lukewarm in supporting local "liberation" struggles for fear they might trigger a nuclear holocaust.

In remarks obviously tailored to woo North Viet Nam close to Peking's ideological viewpoint, Liu told the rally that "our two countries have always supported each other, with our joys and sorrows interconnected, and have always closely cooperated with an assisted each other."

The Chinese People, Liu declared, fully support the Communist struggle in South Viet Nam a struggle which he said had been started by "U.S. imperialist aggressors."

Cabinet Quits In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Anti-Peronist Interior Minister Gen. Enrique Rauch Sunday apparently forced the resignation of President Jose Maria Guido's cabinet, then followed it up by quitting himself.

Rauch's resignation was the third in a series that came in rapid order Sunday as the result of a crisis started by a critical report on alleged government weaknesses made by Rauch himself.

First the three secretaries of the armed services quit. Then the civilian cabinet members followed with the exception of Rauch. Finally Rauch announced his resignation.

The report brought to a head Rauch's fight against what he considers Communist and Peronist threats to the nation in the elections scheduled for July 7.

Red Gunfire Riddles Refugee Bus At Wall

Freedom Bid By 12 Fails; 4 Wounded

BERLIN (AP)—A desperate attempt by 12 persons to escape from East Berlin in a bus collapsed Sunday in salvos of sub-machine gun bullets fired by border guards at point-blank range.

West Berlin police said a woman and three men were wounded by the gunfire. They added that, judging from the appearance of one man, believed to have been the driver, and the way he was handled he could be presumed dead.

The incident occurred at the Sandkrug bridge border crossing point in the center of divided Berlin.

The blue, East Berlin airport bus drove through the 300-foot long slalom course of concrete barriers, designed to slow down vehicles heading toward the border point from the East. It side-swiped a tree near the end of the zigzag course but continued on toward a 10-foot wide gap in the wall which is blocked by two steel barriers.

At this point, border guards opened fire. Four guards standing at the gap, dropped to their knees and aimed their submachine guns at the bus heading toward them.

"The bus stopped, pulled back and drove again toward the gap. Then the four men opened fire," a witness said. "They fired into the front of the bus at a range of not more than 30 feet. There were screams from inside the bus. It was brutal."

The bus finally stopped with its front end in the gap of the wall. Police said the 12 persons in the bus ranged in ages from 20 to 30. Those not injured were led away at gunpoint with their hands raised above their heads.

32 Die In Crash Of Arab Airliner

ZAHEWII, U.A.R. (UPI)—A United Arab Airlines plane plowing through a dust storm exploded "like fireworks" over this tiny mud village Sunday, killing all 32 persons aboard.

The twin-engine plane, en route from Cairo to Alexandria, carried 28 passengers and four crewmen. The airliner exploded in the air and rained burning debris and pieces of shattered bodies on a citrus grove just minutes after it took off from Cairo.

Syria Troops Quell Pro-Nasser Riots

DAMASCUS (UPI)—Charging troops were reported Sunday to have fired over the heads of rioting students to smash pro-Nasser demonstrations in southern Syria.

Travelers arriving here Sunday said the clashes took place Saturday in Der'a after the Syrian government of Premier Salah Bitar resigned and Culture Minister Sami Al Judni failed in his efforts to form a new cabinet.

Many students were arrested and some were injured in the melees, the travelers reported.

Britain Gives U.S. Airlines Seize Warning

LONDON (AP)—The British Aviation Ministry threatened Sunday to seize American airliners landing in Britain if they carry passengers at rates lower than those agreed on by European competitors.

The warning was in a memorandum sent to the two transatlantic American carriers—Pan American and Transworld Airlines—asking whether they had put into effect a five per cent increase on transatlantic economy-class fares or if they plan to do so.

The fare hike, adopted at an international air conference last year, has been in effect in Britain and several other European countries since midnight. But the American carriers, acting under orders of the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board, have stuck to their old, lower fares.

Both Pan Am and TWA operated normally in and out of London Sunday night, and an Aviation Ministry spokesman said no action on the warning would be taken until the ministry had received the lines' replies and studied them.

In New York TWA officials said the airline had answered the British memorandum saying it had asked the U.S. State Department and Civil Aeronautics Board "for their views as to TWA's obligations and responsibilities."

The officials said TWA had promised additional replies "when it has obtained the view of government authorities." It said its transatlantic flights were operating "routinely, at fare levels on file with the CAB."

Housewife First Woman To Solo Across Pacific

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI)—A tired-looking Mrs. Betty Miller, who admitted some anxious moments on the first and last legs of her 7,000-mile flight, landed her twin-engine plane here Sunday to become the first woman to fly solo from California to Australia.

The freckle-faced 36-year-old housewife from Santa Monica, Calif., arrived at Brisbane Airport at 10:20 p.m. (6:20 a.m. EDT). She began her history-making flight from Oakland, Calif., at 9:35 a.m., EST, on April 30.

Weather had forced Mrs. Miller to make an unscheduled stop at Noumea, New Caledonia, on the last leg of her flight from the Fiji Islands. Then, after deciding to continue the flight when weather conditions improved, she reported trouble with one engine but it cleared up.

Mrs. Miller sat in the plane for a few minutes after the landing. She stepped out in a pink-and-white checkered frock, carrying a pair of white sandals in one hand and her belt and handbag in the other.

Under one arm, she also carried her good-luck charm, a fuzzy-haired doll named "Dammie," which she says helps in times of crisis when she merely speaks its name.

At plane side, she told reporters "I had some moments of anxiety after 5 p.m. this afternoon soon after I passed the point of no return when one engine started to run rough. I radioed the Air Traffic Control center to tell them of the trouble but the engine kept going."

The Department of Civil Aviation alerted two planes to stand by in case of emergency.

Rampaging Mobs Clash With Police

50 Hospitalized; Home Of Dr. King's Brother Wrecked

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Thousands of enraged Negroes rioted until daybreak Sunday after bombs had damaged the home of a Negro integration leader and a Negro motel.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., whose brother's home was the one damaged, said later he hoped the violence would not jeopardize a move to bring racial peace.

King returned to Birmingham Sunday from his home in Atlanta. Meanwhile, President Kennedy cut short a Mother's Day weekend in Maryland mountains and returned to Washington to keep in touch with the racial crisis in Alabama.

King was met at the airport here by Joseph Dolan, a representative of the Justice Department. King said he believes a settlement of racial issues will proceed despite the violence.

50 Hospitalized
"Naturally, it was very shocking and unfortunate that these bombings took place at a time when we were so near a settlement of the problem," he said. Nearly 50 persons, including some policemen and firemen, were hospitalized after the rioting.

Gov. George Wallace declared that he would stop violence in Birmingham "if it takes 1,000 or 10,000 law enforcement officers—or whatever it takes."

He offered a state reward of $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible.

Turning to another aspect of the situation, the governor said that "the violence in the streets of Birmingham by Negroes, which began almost simultaneously with the bombings, was disgraceful." He enumerated several incidents of officers' being hit with rocks; one was stabbed.

"This is what Martin Luther King calls nonviolence and passive resistance," he added. "We are going to break this up. Such violence will not be tolerated."

Fires Set, Stores Looted
Thousands of dollars in damage was caused by the rampaging crowds who set fire to a Negro residential area. Looting of stores was reported.

Needle 'Cloud' Sown In Space

LLEXINGTON, Mass. (AP)—Radar contact confirmed Sunday the successful release in space of some 400 million tiny copper needles, smaller than a human hair, in an Air Force experiment to study a new method for worldwide radio communication.

The experiment is being conducted for the Air Force by Lincoln Laboratory of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

An announcement from the laboratory said the needles—known as dipoles, three-quarters of an inch long and about one-third the thickness of a human hair—had been ejected successfully from an Air Force satellite in orbit. It did not say when.

The fibers are expected to spread along a circular orbital path, some 40,000 miles in circumference, to form a thin, narrow ring or belt around the earth. Fifty pounds of wire was employed.

State Dept. Campaigning To Renew Hungary Ties

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department is seeking congressional support for reopening full diplomatic relations with Communist Hungary at an early date.

The basis for the change in U.S. policy toward Hungary, officials said, is provided by relaxation of Communist oppressions of the Hungarian people after the 1956 uprising, which was crushed by Soviet troops.

The State Department, it was learned, has circulated an informal memorandum among members of Foreign Affairs Committees of the Senate and House, reviewing developments in Hungarian policy under the Red regime of Premier Janos Kadar during the past seven years.

While the State Department could restore full diplomatic relations with Hungary on its own, it naturally would be reluctant to do so if it felt such action would stir up strong protest on Capitol Hill.

The developments that have taken place are encouraging," the department memorandum says, "for they have substantially improved the situation and prospects of the Hungarian people."

The United States has declined to end a top-ranking diplomat to Budapest since the bloody 1956 fighting which put Kadar in power. However, the memorandum cited various steps by his Soviet-backed regime since that time which in the Kennedy administration's view make it compare favorably with conditions in Hungary during the Stalinist era as well as immediately after the 1956 uprising.

Police terror, purges, rigid Communist control measures characterized the regime of Matyas Rakosi during the Stalin years and, after Stalin's death, during the period leading up to the revolt.

The memorandum circulated among interested members of Congress a few days ago cited two notable developments of interest to the United States. The first was an amnesty announced by Kadar March 21 and carried out immediately. The State Department memorandum said, "Sober estimates place the total figure of persons released from prisons at between 3,000 and 4,000 of whom a large part were political prisoners."

The other major line of development has been the working out by Kadar of "some sort of accommodation" with the Roman Catholic Church. This is permitting churches in Hungary to have more control over their own affairs and "engage in more vigorous religious activity."

$100,000 Blaze At Westminster

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—A fire raged out of control nearly three hours Sunday afternoon causing an estimated $100,000 damage to the Zepp Furniture Co. Firemen said the blaze started at the rear of the cement building in an area used as a warehouse in the downtown business section.

The intense heat from the fire melted telephone lines behind the 120-foot long building, disrupting telephone service. A telephone company spokesman said an emergency cable was installed, but normal telephone service was not expected to be resumed before the middle of the week.

Grocery Items Reflect Rising Sugar Prices

NEW YORK (AP)—A sugar price rumble has turned into an explosion that's beginning to shake grocery stores.

A double advance announced Friday brought to 11 the number of times the wholesale refined price has risen this year. These boosts have set progressive 43-year highs.

Some consumer prices that had resisted the pressure show signs of giving way. Bagged sugar is up sharply and some food items containing sugar face boosts.

The increases reflect skyrocketing raw sugar prices, which in turn reflect a squeeze caused by reduced world production and growing world demand.

Raw prices hit $10.40 per 100 pounds at week's end in New York, compared with about $6.50 a year ago and with the all-time high of about $23 in 1920. That peak, in the World War I aftermath, was followed by a plunge to $6 that ruined many dealers.

The increases have translated themselves at northeastern groceries into boosts of about 7 cents a 5-pound bag to about 63-65 cents. That's below the newest wholesale prices, however, no further rises are likely at stores that do not, as many do, sell sugar below cost to attract customers.

Western beet sugar areas, whose increases have been smaller and where sugar ran almost 4 cents a pound below eastern cane prices at week's end, have also begun to feel the upward pressure.

Cairo Assails Syrian Leader

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Cairo charged Sunday that Syrian Premier-designate Sami Jundi is a front man for Ba'athists seeking to retain full power. Violent personal attacks on him in the Cairo press and radio dimmed his chances of solving Syria's political crisis.

Cairo newspapers, quoting official sources, declared that designation of Dr. Jundi was no solution to the crisis and did not even serve to restore confidence. The papers said Ba'athist determination to dominate the Syrian army was behind the crisis.

Jundi's efforts to form a government remained inconclusive. Apparently he awaited the outcome of a government overhaul in neighboring Iraq.

Syria and Iraq have agreed to unite with President Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt in a new Arab federation. The Syrian political crisis poses a serious threat to the plans, but there was no clear-cut indication that the resignation of the government in Iraq Saturday broadened the threat to Nasser's union.

Maryland News In Brief

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Twenty persons emerged from a public fallout shelter in the basement of the Eastern Shore State Hospital Saturday night, ending the first group experiment on living conditions in such shelters.

The group spent 24 hours in the 20 by 40-foot room and ate survival crackers and radiation-proof water. Richard Brown, radiological officer of Dorchester County, said none of the group suffered any ill effects from the confinement which was set up to test the reactions of persons confined in public shelters.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The body of 13-year-old William Hanson of Catonsville was recovered by a fire department rescue squad Saturday after the boy drowned while swimming toward a home made raft in the Patapsco River near U.S. 40.

Robert Durnin, 11, told police he, Hanson, and Hanson's 11-year-old brother Michael jumped ashore when their raft tipped over. William swam after it, he said, and another boy fishing from the bank, Philip Gannon, 13, dived in after him. Durnin also made a rescue attempt. The three boys were treated for exposure and released at St. Agnes Hospital.

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP)—Many State Police installations will hold open house this week in observance of Police Week, Col. Carey Jarman, state police superintendent, has announced.

Wednesday will be observed throughout the country as Police Officers Memorial Day, Col. Jarman said, and memorial services will be held and flags at police stations will be flown at half mast in honor of officers who have been killed in the line of duty.

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Maryland petroleum company has added its name to a list of several other companies which have instructed employees to use Friendship International Airport for all business travel.

Henry A. Rosenberg Jr., vice president of Crown Petroleum Corp., announced Monday the firm has issued a directive saying it would be in the best interest of the company for its employees to use Friendship rather than Dulles Airport at Chantilly, Va., for business flights.

Fenneman Chief Judge Of Tax Court

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes announced Sunday he is designating Lawrence B. Fenneman as chief judge of the Maryland Tax Court.

At the same time he announced reappointment of Cornelius P. Mundy, present chief judge, to another six-year term as a judge.

Judge Fenneman, a Baltimore attorney and member of the court since it was created in 1959, in a reorganization of the State Tax Commission, will be elevated to chief judge when Judge Mundy's new term begins May 31.

The law requires that no more than three of the five judges be from the same political party. Judges Fenneman, John Wood Logan of Denton, and Joseph M. Mathias of Silver Spring are Democrats. Judges Mundy and William A. Wilson of Midland are Republicans.

The chief judges' salary is $12,000 a year and that of the associates $8,000.

Fenneman, a former deputy city solicitor of Baltimore, was general chairman of the Tawes campaign for governor in 1958.

U.N. Financial Deal Expected

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—American and British U.N. delegates said Sunday they are hopeful that the General Assembly, in its special session starting Tuesday, will find a way to get the money needed to maintain peace-keeping operations.

Adlai E. Stevenson of the United States and Sir Patrick Dean of Britain expressed their optimism in response to a moderator's question on Stevenson's forthrightly television show, prerecorded Monday at Stevenson's mission near here.

Stevenson said the United States had carried a disproportionate share amounting to nearly half the costs of the Congo and Middle East operations and was the only country beside Britain to make voluntary contributions for peace-keeping, on top of assessed contributions.

Three Killed On Md. Roads

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three deaths Sunday brought Maryland's 1963 traffic fatality count to 196, compared with 164 a year ago.

Sherman Russell Clark, 35, of Oxon Hill, Md., was killed when he was thrown from his motorcycle after striking the fender of a car.

Prince Georges County police said Clark attempted to pass a car on Maryland 202 in Palmer Park. Clark's motorcycle struck the edge of the fender, went out of control and threw him about 10 feet.

Lance Leon Eck, 17, of Linthicum, was killed when his car went out of control on Maryland 70 near Glen Burnie and turned over several times.

State Police said Eck was going at an excessive rate of speed. Benjamin Franklin Burroughs, 64, of Upper Marlboro, was fatally injured when his car went out of control and crashed on Maryland 382 in Prince Georges County.

53 High School Bands In Festival

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Bands from 53 high schools in the District of Columbia and neighboring Maryland counties will participate in a festival Friday at the University of Maryland.

The festival is sponsored by the Lions Clubs of the area and the university's music department.

Soren Lura, of Forest Heights, Md., general chairman for the annual festival, said several thousand senior and junior high school musicians will take part. The festival will open at 8 a.m. and continue until 10 p.m., with each of the bands playing two selections.

Dr. Frederick Fennell, associate conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, will conduct a concert by the festival band which will be composed of 75 selected musicians from the school bands. This will start at 10 p.m.

A $500 music scholarship to the University of Maryland will be awarded to the senior student selected in an earlier scholarship competition as an outstanding musician.

Scottish Church Attacks Roman Catholic Rules

LONDON (AP)—The Church of Scotland objected Sunday to Roman Catholic rules on mixed marriages. It claimed they are a cause of broken homes and a stumbling block to Christian unity.

In a special report which also assailed practices of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), the Church of Scotland asked the British government to do what it can in the Vatican to have the mixed-marriage rules withdrawn.

Some liberal Roman Catholic Church leaders have already considered changing the canon law on marriages between Roman Catholics and persons of other faiths. The question is expected to be discussed when the Vatican Ecumenical Council resumes in September.

The Church of Scotland, which is Presbyterian, says the Roman Catholic rules are embittering the Vatican's relations with other Christian churches.

The report objected to the Roman Catholic decree which holds that no marriage of a Roman Catholic is valid unless performed by a priest, even though the partner is a non-Catholic. The same decree requires that children of such a marriage must be reared as Roman Catholics. The Roman Catholic partner of the marriage is expected to make efforts to convert the non-Catholic partner to the faith.

The report also attacked methods it said were used by Mormons to bring in members. "Their most insidious approach is to young people, attracted as always to what is romantically American, taking them free to football games, organizing American baseball teams, and offering them other similar inducements," the report said.

"Thus they play on youthful interest in what is free, what is bizarre, what is novel."

Rampaging

in the back. A white taxi driver was dragged from his vehicle and stabbed. His cab was overturned and set afire.

Large rocks shattered windshields of police and fire vehicles. The autos of passersby were peppered with rocks. Tires were slashed on parked cars, mostly police vehicles.

Peace returned with the dawn, but heavily armed and reinforced police continued to patrol the streets, giving this industrial center the appearance of a city under siege.

The suburban home of King's brother, the Rev. A. D. King, was the first target of the bombers. Two blasts shortly after midnight nearly demolished the brick dwelling. King, his wife, and five children were not injured.

Less than 30 minutes later the downtown A. G. Gaston motel, used as headquarters during the six-week integration battle, was shaken by two explosions. Three women were hurt.

Thousands of Negroes gathered at both bombing scenes. They began shelling police and fire vehicles with rocks.

The crowd at King's home dispersed early, but trouble was brewing at the motel four miles away. Throngs at the motel began stoning police. Sheriff's deputies and state troopers rushed to cope with the situation.

Fires were set at stores and dwellings. A police car and motorcycle were burned. Negroes sped past in cars and hurled rocks at police before the streets were blocked. Knives flashed among the crowd.

The motel is less than a block from the park where fire hoses and police dogs were used to repel massive demonstrations, some involving school children. The Negro church used as a base for demonstrators is a block away. The area is about six blocks from the main business district.

Jefferson County Sheriff Melvin Bailey said that a 24-block area had been sealed off. Bailey said a number of firearms were confiscated by officers who searched automobiles driven by Negroes.

Only the approach of dawn brought a lull in the violence. The pleas of Negro leaders asking the crowds to disperse went unheeded for more than three hours. A.D. King joined the group effort to quiet the crowd.

Firemen could not get to the many fires because of lack of police protection. Negroes threw rocks at firemen as they attempted to hook up hoses. Several were felled by rocks.

Three police officers—including Chief Inspector W. J. Haley—were hurt. The inspector was struck in the head by a rock while attempting to move Negroes back so firemen could reach a blaze.

Tear gas was used on one occasion in an attempt to disperse both white persons and Negroes in the motel area.

An arrest order was issued for the driver and occupants of an automobile believed involved in the motel bombing. The car was registered in the name of an Adamsville, Ala., resident, police said.

Highway patrolmen were called back to the city. Many of the 575 who were called here last week had left only a few hours before the bombings.

The troopers—still armed with shotguns, tear gas, rifles and submachineguns—had been stationed here during the later stages of the racial demonstrations and briefly after the truce had been declared.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My youngest brother is being married this fall to a girl who comes from a fine family. I have never met her or her people. They live several thousand miles away.

Last week I received a letter from the bride-to-be and she asked me to be her matron of honor. I would like to accept but something is holding me back.

During World II I ran around with a pretty fast crowd. A bunch of us girls who worked in the PX went out one night and had our arms tattooed. I especially admired Skinny Wainwright at the time so his name is tattooed on my left arm. On my right arm is an eagle carrying a streamer which says "Buy War Bonds."

All these years I've been wearing long-sleeved dresses because I am ashamed of the tattoos. A matron of honor has to wear the gown selected by the bride, and such gowns are usually sleeveless. Shall I tell her I can't accept and give no reason? — SPINNING HEAD

DEAR HEAD: A tattoo can be removed. See a dermatologist about details. If you are unable or unwilling to afford the time and expense, ask your future sister-in-law for the privilege of selecting your own gown — inviting her suggestions about color and fabric, of course. Then select a dress with sleeves or wear long gloves.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why do people think that just because we have eight children we need their worn out, faded, discarded clothing? I've made floor rags out of better clothing than friends and neighbors have brought over here for my children to wear.

We aren't wealthy people, Ann, but my husband has a steady job and we can afford to dress our children fairly well. Every time I see a neighbor or a friend coming into the porch with a box under her arm I want to scream.

My temper has just about run its string and I'm afraid that the next time I get a "contribution" I'm going to tell someone off.

Can you suggest how to put a stop to this insulting practice? — NOT PAUPERS

DEAR NOT: These people aren't consciously insulting you.

They don't know any better, and it's time you told them. Simply let them know you appreciate their kindness but you don't need any clothing for your children. Suggest that they call Goodwill Industries or one of the local welfare agencies.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night my parents were discussing our summer plans. We have a cottage in northern Illinois and for the past five years my folks have let me invite a boy friend up for a couple of weeks in July. This year I told them I'd like to invite a girl and they almost bit my head off. By the way, I ought to tell you that I am a boy. 17.

We have two bedrooms in our cottage with twin beds in each room. The girl could sleep with my mother and my dad could bunk with me.

We are well-behaved kids and wouldn't think of doing anything wrong. Besides, Ann, my folks would be with us every minute. I'm pretty disappointed to think my folks don't trust me. How can kids behave their best when their parents expect the worst? Please help me swing this, Annie. You were young once.

—B. WILDERED

Dear B.: Sorry Buster, you rattled the wrong cage. I am not about to suggest that parents of teenagers provide a set up as cozy as this.

I'm sure you are good kids and have no intention of doing anything wrong. But I was indeed young once, and I know that night and day exposure is pretty strong stuff. Under such conditions chemistry might prove to be a more powerful force than judgment.

And for your information, Buddy Boy, maybe your parents have some notions about spending two weeks in separate bedrooms. To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

(1963 By The Chicago Tribune)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ 10 8 5 ♥ 3 8 5 4 3 ♦ K J 4 ♣ A 10

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Double Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—Three hearts. This is really a very fine hand facing a take-out double and, unless you so indicate via the jump response, partner is apt to drop you and a sure game will be missed.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ 4 3 ♥ 3 8 7 5 4 ♦ 3 2 ♣ 8 7

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass Pass Double

2 ♦ Double ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. The partner does not figure to have much of a fit for your suit when he bids spades and diamonds, even a small doubleton or a singleton honor could make this the best contract, since his hand should prove to be a good dummy for you. Furthermore, if he does not like hearts, you are prepared to lead him rebid spades.

Q. 3—Both sides vulnerable, and as South you hold:

♠ A Q 8 3 ♥ K 9 3 ♦ K J 9 ♣ J 8 2

Your right hand opponent opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you bid?

A.—Pass. You are not quite strong enough to make a take-out double, which, in this spot, shows the strength for a one no trump opener. In fact, any action at this point would be most indiscreet and could lead to serious difficulties if West has the balance of the remaining high cards, a by no means remote prospect.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ A J 8 5 4 ♥ A Q 8 ♣ A Q 8 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ 3 ♦

What do you bid now?

A.—Four diamonds. Even with partner's modest response a slam is possible and East's overall service both to encourage us (there is less likelihood of a duplication of values in diamonds now) and simplifies our rebid problem. If partner's side values are in clubs and hearts, he will now be in a position to place the proper value on them and act accordingly.

Q. 5—Your side has an 80 part score, and as South you hold:

♠ K Q 7 3 ♥ Q 10 4 ♦ A 9 ♣ A K 8 3

Your partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What is your response?

A.—Three no trump. This hand is somewhat awkward to bid because of the part score situation. Partner is too apt to pass a mere change of suit response. The three no trump bid shows a balanced hand with 16-18 points in high cards and, when made under the circumstances of the advanced part score, would tend to indicate the maximum.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ 10 8 7 6 4 3 ♥ K J 7 ♣ K 5 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ 1 NT Pass Pass

Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. By his reopening double, partner has indicated a hand well in excess of a minimum. Added to the seven points you have, this should spell a substantial set for the opponents. No thought should be given to bidding two clubs and, in view of East's overall, you would be best advised to lead a heart should one no trump doubled become the final contract.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A J 8 5 ♥ A K ♦ J 10 9 ♣ K 8 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Despite the lack of a sure diamond stopper, this hand contains the textbook requirements for a one no trump bid and should have been opened accordingly. At this stage of the proceedings, game prospects appear too dim to justify any further probing.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ A 6 4 3 ♥ A Q J ♦ 9 7 6 4 ♣ 10 8

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. The double is just about the only way to show a fairly good hand when the bidding is about to die out at a low level and should be employed here despite the weakness in clubs. Partner will choose from the major suits for his response, if he possibly can, so if he does bid clubs, you can reasonably expect him to have a five card suit.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Charm Goes Around In Circles

We hear a great deal, these space-conscious days, of astounding information on the size of the universe, the number of galaxies, the immeasurable distances.

Chances are, that in spite of all this, each human being will go right on regarding himself as at least as important as the rest of the universe!

We really can't help regarding ourselves as the center around which the rest of the world revolves. What deeply affects the thing we call "personality" is:

how far outside that "self" in the center our vision extends.

A bore has been described as:

"Someone who, when you ask how he is, tells you." It's not hard to recognize this gal in your circle of acquaintances. Her interest never gets more than an inch or two outside that self-center, and her conversation lists each minute detail of her mental and physical condition. Not hard to recognize—only to escape from before your patience wears out.

Then there's the woman whose horizon extends all the way to the walls of her home with occasional peeks through the picture window to see what the neighbors are up to. She can

(and all too often does) discourse at length on such subjects as how to clean window blinds, recipes, and "outside interests" such as grocery prices. She's great fun at a neighborhood

coffee klatch—for a while, anyway.

The level at which we begin to call a woman "charming" rises

that a charming woman doesn't have a healthy interest in her own well-being; she does. Not that a charming woman isn't capable and interested in her work; she must be. But these are the beginning, not the end, of her outlook on living.

The trouble with trapping yourself inside narrow circles is that they ARE a trap—and it can get terribly lonely in there!

One indispensable "circle" for any woman is genuine interest in others — ranging from family,

close friends, acquaintances,

through all others, and back again. Other horizons may vary—the use of talents, participation in groups that affect you and your family, learning new things.

In a way, this is a good form of selfishness; for one of the results is that more people will be more interested in YOU.

Personality improvement, as well as appearance and grooming, are charted in my booklet,

"Your Steps to a Successful Career," available on request from me, John Robert Powers, in care of your newspaper, when you enclose 10c and a self-adressed stamped envelope.

Readers Of The Samovar Leaves

Mysticism is inherent in the art of Kremlinology. It requires as its tools of the trade not a crystal ball or taps on a table in a darkened room, but simply Soviet newspapers, photographs and radio broadcasts. The experts in this occult science pretend to find great significance in the shifting of Russian big-wigs at public functions, changes in the Kremlin propaganda line and such.

For example, the report by the Soviet agency Tass of remarks by Fidel Castro at a Kremlin luncheon was pounced upon as suggesting that Premier Khrushchev was being "downgraded."

Tass first reported as follows: "Fidel Castro spoke with sincere warmth about the great work of Comrade N. S. Khrushchev, outstanding figure of the Communist Party and the Soviet government, great and true friend of revolutionary Cuba."

Less than an hour later, Tass corrected this by substituting the following phrase after the words "sincere warmth": "... about the outstanding activity of Comrade N. S. Khrushchev, who leads the Leninist Central Committee of Communist Party and the Soviet government."

The world will probably never know exactly what Castro said and this isn't very important. What seems important to the experts is what Tass in its quick rewriting of history wanted readers to think he said.

Perhaps it means something and perhaps it doesn't. But this uncertainty of itself will keep a crew of Kremlinologists busy for days, perhaps even weeks.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Their Mouths Are Stopped

David Rockefeller, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank, issued a ringing call the other day for the U. S. business community to get in there and pitch with some good advice to those in charge of Latin American aid programs under the Alliance for Progress. The Rockefeller call has evoked a rather deafening silence. It's not that business men are unwilling to help, but they are manifestly tired of being kicked around as "exploiters" when they point out that investors are timid about risking funds in countries where Marxist parties are on the rise.

The case of Chile, where a Marxist election victory is freely predicted, is a particularly interesting one, for here is a temperate zone land with great natural endowments that should be attracting more and more private capital from abroad. Indeed, Chile has already done very well for itself simply because international copper companies like Anaconda, Kennecott and the French Societe Miniere et Metallurgique de Penarroya are there. If the Chileans, unlike other peoples in Latin America, have a middle class, it is due to the "foreign exploiters" of a natural resource that would have remained useless in local hands.

The Chilean Marxists, muttering nineteenth century cliches about "imperialism," speak of copper exports as if they had brought nothing to the country. And the international copper companies don't dare argue back, for if they did they would be accused of making self-serving statements or trying to interfere with local elections. Standing mute, they let the case go by default.

But shouldn't be permitted to go by default. In the first place, the Chilean government does very well by itself from the taxes on copper exports, taking two-thirds and more of the profits on mining operations for its own use. It would hardly do better if the mines were nationalized, for it would stand to lose more in inefficiency than it would gain from total seizure of the product. The disillusioning experience of Pemex, the Mexican national oil monopoly whose payrolls are clogged with adherents of the majority political party, is instructive here.

This is not the main point, however. The real benefits accruing to a country like Chile from the presence of so-called "imperialists" is that foreign companies breed domestic companies, in an ever-widening complex that helps turn a primitive economy into a modern one.

If a "foreign" mining company in Chile wants construction done, it has to enlist the help of companies like Neut Latour or Ingcecl; if it needs steel, it goes to Cap or Compac as well as the Chilean branch of Armco; if it wants foundry work, it relies on Fundicion Libertad, Carburio y Metalurgia or Electrometalurgia; if it is in the market for more electrical power, it applies to Endesa, which is the national electrical authority; if it requires fuel oil, it must tap Enap, the government oil monopoly. The "foreigner" thus builds up organizations with reassuring local names, personnel and ownership, which is another way of saying that he helps create an affluent and progressive middle class that differs considerably from the traditional land-owning aristocracy that sends its wealth to Switzerland for safekeeping.

Meanwhile, standards of health and education rise. In Chilean mining communities the infant mortality rate is 35 per thousand births, which, if not marvelous, is better than the 37 per thousand figure for the North American state of Mississippi. The "foreigner" gives laboratories to local universities, and even helps pay for the installation of an educational TV station at the Catholic University in Valparaiso. He helps establish the first industrial hygiene and safety curriculum at the University of Concepcion. Local people are sent abroad by the "foreigner" to study industrial relations, medicine, teaching, management, engineering, smelting and milling — and when they return home to Chile they do not necessarily remain for long on the "foreigner's" payroll.

Now, the American companies that mine copper in Chile would be caught dead before claiming in public that they can do more to build a local middle class than any Chilean-owned copper company might do. I had to be put on to this story by an ex-employee of a copper company who now works for the U. S. government in Washington. He can afford to speak the truth without worrying about whether it would be called self-serving or not.

'Convinced I'm The Leader Of The Band?'

JFK's Words On Amendments Bring Criticism

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON. — Impromptu statements by a President of the United States at a news conference can evoke widespread criticism, especially if the answers show that they have not been thought through.

Thus, Kennedy's words over nationwide television and radio networks told a large section of the American people on Wednesday that, in effect, there is something in trying to amend the Constitution of the United States. Yet that document itself prescribes the methods of amendment, and the fact is that the republic.

Mr. Kennedy has a right to oppose particular amendments that he doesn't like. But he will be regarded as out of bounds when he declares that people who want to amend the Constitution are not "defending" the Constitution, particularly when their purpose in the instance referred to is to secure the adoption of specific amendments that will preserve and defend the basic principles of the Constitution itself against usurpation and abuse of power.

The President's words, as they appear in the White House transcript of Wednesday's news conference, were as follows:

"It has always seemed to me remarkable that those people and organizations who are founded in order to defend the Constitution should seek to change it, and particularly to change it in such a basic way, either to affect the power of the Congress to amend the Constitution and put severe limitations upon the Congress, which, after all, represents the people most directly, or otherwise to affect the power of the Supreme Court. Which is one of the most important protections of individual rights and one of the most important securities we have for an amicable settlement of disputes, and which, after all, became such a significant part of our American constitutional development under the leadership of an American who is usually heralded—Mr. John Marshall. So I would think that the efforts will come to nothing, and I will be glad when they do not."

But Mr. Kennedy failed to tell his audience that the current movement to amend certain parts of the Constitution has grown out of the controversy over who should apportion the voting districts in a state and other instances of alleged usurpation of power by the Supreme Court—which has no right to amend the Constitution. The proper methods at present for making changes in the Constitution are specified in the document itself.

Mr. Kennedy apparently hasn't looked into the proposals which have been made recently by various organizations of citizens and which already have received the support of several state legislatures.

First of all, it is important to emphasize something which the general public may not realize and which perhaps high officials in our government have brushed aside—namely, that the Constitution can be amended in other ways than by a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress and ratification by three-fourths of the state legislatures. It can be done directly by the people.

For Article V of the Constitution provides that Congress, "on the application of the legislatures of the two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress."

It so happens that the famous prohibition amendment was repealed and the twenty-first amendment substituting for it was adopted without being submitted to the legislatures of the states. It was ratified instead by conventions in two-thirds of the states summoned by the state legislatures. It took only nine

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathart

Some of the local telephone companies in larger cities throughout the country have embarked on a program to discourage individuals who want private numbers, rather than having them listed in the directory.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, as a part of its drive, has made available some statistics on unlisted telephones in Washington. The company reports that there are 84,000 telephones around Washington whose owners are not listed in the phone directory. They comprise 13 per cent of all the phones in the area—a particularly high number when the large number of government telephones is taken into account.

Surprisingly, government officials account for only 1.5 per cent of the unlisted telephones. Businesses account for 5.2 per cent, professional people 3.3 per cent. The largest group, making up three-quarters of those with unlisted phones, consists of employed persons—from white to blue collar workers. Of those who have unlisted telephones, 15 per cent have even succeeded in keeping secret from the telephone company what they do for a living.

Only one other city in the United States has a larger percentage of unlisted telephone subscribers—Chicago with 14 per cent.

The telephone company in Washington will keep a subscriber out of the directory at no charge upon his request, but it tries to talk individuals out of the idea. Unlisted numbers mean more telephone operators looking up information they can't give out. And in case of emergency it often means that one person can't reach another regardless of how useful he may be of doing so.

The White House has a whole network of private lines linking it with all of the important government officials' offices in Washington. However, its listed phone number, in case you want to speak to Jack or Jackie, is National 8-1414.

Oldsters' Forgetfulness Comes And Goes

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

"Can you send me any information on forgetfulness or loss of memory in old age? My father is 75 years old and is extremely forgetful about everything," writes Mrs. R. We have some information on the subject but I must warn this reader that the day of miracles is far away.

Some degree of forgetfulness in the elderly is so common, we consider it normal. There are exceptions, however, in that many men and women of advanced age are alert and keen of mind. When loss of memory exists it is for recent events. Grandpa may forget what happened yesterday or even a few minutes ago, but recalls a business deal of 25 years ago and what Roosevelt did after becoming president. This may help to explain why he likes to reminisce when given the slightest encouragement.

Forgetfulness tends to come and go. It is more pronounced when the older is tired, sick, or depressed. Illnesses, including slight infections, aggravate many of the behavioral aspects of the aged. Too much bed rest and inactivity do the same. The rocking chair may be a geriatric symbol but it does lead to some exercise, and in this respect is desirable.

Our reader should be happy her dad is not plagued with feelings of guilt, depression, suspiciousness, incoherence, weakness, and odd mannerisms. These are manifestations of the same degenerative processes that occur in the brain as a result of a gradual loss of active brain cells and intellectual units.

There are no specific remedies for memory loss except to maintain good physical health through diet, and vitamin and mineral mixtures, exercise, ample sleep, and remaining active. Sedatives and tranquilizers do not solve the problem and occasionally they aggravate the condition. So far,

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Corf

"Now," said a psychiatrist to his new patient, "we're going to find out just what makes you tick."

"That won't be enough, mourned the patient. 'I also want to know what makes me chime every quarter of an hour.'"

When the late Gertrude Stein and her lifelong companion, Alice Toklas, were visiting Chicago in the 1930s, they prevailed upon the head of the police department to take them for a midnight round in a police squad car. Earlier in the evening, Miss Stein entertained Critic Fanny Butcher and Chancellor Bob Hutchins of Chicago University, at dinner. All of these distinguished figures were both articulate and sure of their opinions and an argument ensued that grew louder and more vehement by the moment. At its height the maid rushed in, white as a sheet, and reported, "Miss Stein! The police are here!" Overheard at a college pond: "She reminds me of Bardot," "Brigitte?" "No, Guy Lom."

Justice Department Awaits Court Decision On Birmingham Test Cases

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The backstage conversations over Birmingham inside the White House have been aimed at a holding action until the Supreme Court could rule on the basic question of integrated lunch counters in the South—probably today.

It so happens that two test cases involving the Birmingham ordinance against whites and Negroes eating together are before the Supreme Court.

One case is that of James G. G. O'Connell, a Negro who made a purchase at Pizitz's Department Store in Birmingham on March 31, 1960, then went to the lunch counter with a friend, was ignored by the waitress, then asked to leave, finally arrested for trespassing.

The second case is that of Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, one of the Negro leaders recently arrested, who earlier was charged with inciting a crime by aiding and abetting persons to stay on private property after being told to get off. Rev. Shuttlesworth had held a meeting in his home at which he asked for volunteers for sit-in demonstrators.

Both cases are on appeal from the Alabama Supreme Court, and along with other cases from North Carolina, Louisiana, and Maryland were argued last November.

Anticipating a decision for civil rights, Burke Marshall, Kennedy's assistant attorney general for civil rights, has been trying to maintain a truce until the courts acts.

Then the Justice Department has promised to move vigorously to back up the court's order.

JFK's Wrong Man—

The trouble in Birmingham, as contrasted with the racial progress made in cities like Atlanta, Charlotte, Knoxville, Nashville, and Louisville, can be traced to two factors:

1—Enlightened leadership in these cities, such as that of the long-time mayor of Atlanta, Mayor William Hartsfield, ex-Mayor Ben West of Nashville, and ex-Mayor George Dempster of Knoxville.

2—Strong segregationist forces in Alabama which the Kennedy Administration unwittingly supported.

One of the first things Kennedy did after taking office was to appoint Charles Meriwether of Alabama to be a director of the Export-Import Bank. This was a reward to Gov. John Patterson of Alabama who had loyally kept part of the Alabama delegation for Kennedy at the Los Angeles convention which nominated him.

In repaying his debt to Gov. Patterson, however, Kennedy did not realize that he was appointing a man who had been on friendly terms with the grand klegale of the Ku Klux Klan, had been identified with White Citizens Councils, and actually had nothing to do with keeping Gov. Patterson in line for Kennedy. It was Ed E. Reid, director of the Alabama League of Municipal Councils, and a moderate, who persuaded Patterson to stick with Kennedy.

A handful of liberal Senators, led by Wayne Morse and Maurice Neuberger, (D-Ore.), William Proxmire, (D-Wis.), Jack Javits, (R-N.Y.), fought against Meriwether. But he was confirmed, and when a segregationist was rewarded, and Reid, a moderate, ignored, it was considered the tip-off, erroneously, that Kennedy would play ball with segregationist forces in Alabama.

This discouraged Alabama moderates, both white and Negro, and encouraged race demonstrations as the only remedy.

Birmingham Discouragements
Other developments pointed in the same direction. They were: A—Kennedy's firm statement that he would not cut off federal funds from Mississippi as requested by the Civil Rights Commission.

Southern States, thought ardent preachers of states rights, collect huge slices of their budget from Washington — two thirds in the case of Mississippi — and have been worried over losing this revenue.

B—Brother Bob's failure to defend the ten marchers jailed at the Alabama border when they tried to cross that state in tribute to Baltimore mail man, William Moore. The U.S. Constitution guarantees the right of petition, and these marchers were en route with a petition to the governor of Mississippi; also the right of any citizen to cross state lines. Yet Attorney General Kennedy, supposedly the defender of the Constitution, has let these men sit in jail.

C—The Birmingham city elections April 2, which put a moderate mayor, Albert Boutwell, in office. He and Birmingham businessmen immediately let it be known that they would sit down and talk with Negro leaders regarding racial problems.

But before any meeting could be held, Eugene "Bull" Connor, the tough police commissioner who had been defeated in the election, announced that his administration would continue in office until Oct. 1, 1965. Mayor Boutwell was supposed to take office April 15. One month has passed and he is still on the side lines, with Bull Connor calling the tune.

All of these contributed to the impatience of integrationist leaders and a series of demonstrations which have probably hurt the United States abroad even more than Little Rock or "Ole Miss."

Peace Corps Boom
It's now been 18 months since the newspapers were full of sound and fury over a postcard written by a Peace Corps girl in Nigeria about conditions there. But believe it or not, the Nigerian government has now asked the Peace Corps to double the number of its workers. When Margery Michelmore wrote her indiscreet postcard there were only 36 Peace Corps volunteers in Nigeria. Today there are 150, and the Nigerian government wants a total of 300. Congratulations to the Peace Corps and Sargent Shriver, its guiding genius.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

There is a man in North Carolina who falls in love with deformed infants. His name is Kays Gary and he writes for The Charlotte Observer. He is a rough, tough, jaded reporter. I met him twice. Once in Berlin and once in a plane enroute to Frankfurt, Germany. He is a hard cookie until he sees a hurt baby. Then he starts to come apart.

Now he has met a nun named Sister Marie Patrice, of Belmont, North Carolina, and the Lord only knows how the story will end because she is the kind who wants to sacrifice her life for little ones who do not get a fair shake from life. In fact, she is operating a nursery for crippled babies on an income of $40.00.

So Mr. Gary has written a letter to me and, before I began to read it, I kept telling myself: "No matter what he says, don't pay any attention to it, because I know that this guy is a sucker for a sob story and I am a person who writes these things—and never reads them."

"Though I'm a backsliding Methodist," Gary writes, "one of my dearest friends is Sister Marie Patrice of nearby Belmont, N. C. Seven years ago, the operation of a day nursery there was altered by a miracle. It began the day a doctor begged her to take care of an abandoned, horrible accident of birth."

"It was a hydrocephalic with a huge spinal tumor, rudimentary appendages for legs, and it seemed devoid of sight or hearing or potential for human personality. Sister took the child—or vegetable—or whatever it was. I will not detail the painful story except to say that Sister Patrice's baby is little Maria, inspiration for the founding of Holy Angels Nursery."

"Maria, age 7, is now my love . . . bright and beautiful as only angels are. She writes, she paints, she loves. She can't decide whether to become a nun, a nurse, an actress, or just a plain teenager." The size of her head has been reduced by nine inches. A successful operation removed the spinal tumor. She has little legs and feet and the legs will never walk, but the feet wear pretty shoes.

"Maria possesses the five senses plus one—that of angels. The State of North Carolina has no institution for children under six. Hundreds are born like Maria, Jim. Hundreds unwanted; hundreds that even the doctors do not want to send home."

"Sister talked a hard-hearted Presbyterian into putting up the first building, on a promise to pay 'some day.' Overnight, the building was filled with babies. Holy Angels is non-sectarian. The children of Baptists are there beside Jewish and Catholic infants. The board of directors represents every faith in our area."

"We're out of money. I used every means I know. I wrote stories about the place and the people around here gave and gave until they could give no more. Once, I even auctioned off Billy Graham's necktie. It wouldn't be so bad if Sister Patrice could learn to turn down a baby now and then.

"She keeps us in hot water. Her angels overflowed into an old frame building which the sovereign State of North Carolina now says must be abandoned because of building codes. I know you can't leave yourself open, Jim. But wait. Stay with me a minute longer."

"A few nights ago, looking for a lost key, I ran across coins and currency collected over the years in traveling abroad. The thought occurred to me that coins must be in sock drawers all over America. These are the little leftovers. So are the babies."

"Do you think that perhaps you could ask readers to send in old coins, foreign coins, anything negotiable? Your column gets around. It's just an idea—a bit far out—but something. A lot of ex-G.I.'s have coins and bills from foreign lands. Some people even have crisp new American money of small denominations. We're not proud. We'll take anything."

"One last thing. Holy Angels offers no daily miracles. What it has to give is love. I can't explain it. You'd have to see it. When the Sisters hold the little ones in their arms, that is when the angels sing. Can you hear them, Jim?"

"No I can't. One thing I know, my friend. You wrecked my day. It started off sunny and warm and now I have a head full of little angels and nuns who spend their days nuzzling 'the leftovers' and their nights worrying about where they are going to get the money for tomorrow's milk."

"It just so happens that I have a drawer full of coins and it just so happens that they keep me from finding my cuff links and my collar pins and nail clippers. Otherwise, they would not be in the mail aimed at you—Kays Gary, Charlotte Observer, Charlotte, N. C."

If you think I'm the type who will fall for your sob story, you're mistaken.

Angels indeed;

Citizens Ticket Of Lonaconing Lists Platform

Town Election Set Tomorrow

LONACONING — The Citizens Ticket in tomorrow's municipal election announced a 12-point platform last night.

The ticket is headed by Dr. Leslie R. Miles Jr., one of three candidates for mayor. Incumbent Mayor Harold W. Moyer is seeking re-election, and the other candidate is Dewey Burns, local merchant.

Ten candidates, including all incumbents have filed for the four available council posts.

The Citizens Ticket issued this statement last night:

"For many years there has not been a complete slate of candidates for mayor and council in Lonaconing politics. This year a group of interested citizens felt that for the betterment of the town a group of men should work together, and thus the formation of the Citizens Ticket.

"They are presenting for mayor L. R. Miles Jr., M. D., local physician, and for council, William J. Hadley, foreman at Kelly-Springfield Tire Company; Ervin D. Lewis, local manager of Potomac Edison; Wilbur Lancaster, local owner of a variety store, and Benjamin Zarger, employed at Celanese Corporation.

"These men have formulated plans together and pledged to the people a cooperative group with efficiency and practical application of their administrative civic duties. The platform of the Citizens Ticket incorporates the following important points:

"1. Reduction of salaries of elected officials to former level, with this money to be used for salaried employees instead of mayor and councilmen.

"2. No paid holidays for elected officials.

"3. Pay-as-you-go is not now in effect, nor has it ever been in effect, nor is it likely ever to be in effect.

"4. We pledge cooperation with all departments of the city government. With proper department heads handling their respective jobs efficiently, the mayor's job can be held to a minimum of his time being involved.

"5. Parking facilities for downtown area, to be worked out in cooperation with businessmen.

"6. No prior commitments to any individual or group, only to Lonaconing as a whole.

"7. All city business to be conducted in the council chamber, and not in small private groups.

"8. Open council meetings, both to public and press.

"9. Recreational facilities for young people.

"10. Active and full cooperation with the Lonaconing Civic Improvement Association.

Mother's Day Marked At Grafton

GRAFTON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia's Mother's Day activities centered Sunday around this small Taylor County community where the nation's annual observance was given its start by Anna Jarvis in the early 1900s.

Among honored guests here Sunday were Gov. W. W. Barron who gave a gold pin to Mrs. Blance Banister Ballard, 80, Fayetteville, designated as West Virginia's 1963 Centennial "Mother of the Year."

Other visitors included Mrs. John Glenn Sr., mother of Astronaut John Glenn, who presented the city with a sundial on behalf of the American Mothers' Committee. The sundial is to be placed in the formal gardens of the International Mother's Day Shrine proposed for the area around St. Andrews Methodist Church.

The church is where Miss Jarvis' mother, Mrs. Anna Reeves Jarvis taught Sunday school and where Miss Jarvis arranged for a simple "mother's day" ceremony in 1907 in honor of her late mother.

Miss Jarvis' effort to set aside one day a year in honor of all mothers reached a climax in 1914 when the then President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed Mother's Day a national observance. Gov. William E. Glasscock proclaimed it a state observance in 1910.

Mrs. Ballard was selected Centennial Mother of the Year from among 200 nominees received by a special committee headed by Mrs. E. Forrest Jones, Charleston. The committee also selected 17 "merit" mothers.

The money you're putting into U. S. Savings Bonds today will probably some day go into college tuition, or new furniture, or the walls of a new home.

Until you need it, this money is earmarked for a very important job. And you can be sure it isn't building a 27-mile barrier of brick, barbed wire, and concrete.

Every dollar you save with Uncle Sam goes directly into keeping our country strong, with its affairs in good order, so that we can carry on the struggle for freedom—at remote outposts, at conference tables, in outer space.

Tens of millions of American families have accumulated $45 billion in E and H Bonds—part of our strength as individuals. And part of the strength of the nation.

Start putting part of your savings to work for your country while it works for you. Buy U. S. Savings Bonds at your bank regularly or where you work, and see if you don't feel good about it.

Quick facts about U. S. Savings Bonds | 1. You get $4 back for every $3 when your Bonds mature. 2. Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, stolen, or destroyed. 3. You can get money anytime. 4. You can save automatically on Payroll Savings.

Julius Boros Wins Colonial Second Time In Four Years

Player's Closing Rush Falls Short; Nicklaus Is Third

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Julius Boros' steady 1-over-par 71 brought him his second Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament in four years Sunday as he ousted Gary Player's closing rush and won the $12,000 first money with 279 for 72 holes.

Player, the little South African who was the only member of golf's big three to threaten seriously, pulled within two strokes of Boros as he turned the first nine in 32—a stroke over the record. But he took a bogey on 15 where he missed a 15-foot putt coming out of the rough while Boros was shooting a birdie and his threat faded.

Player wound up with a 3-under-par 67 for 283 and $6,000 second money.

Boros, the stoic former National Open champion, was the first player under 280 in the Colonial tournament since 1955 when Chandler Harper won with 276.

Boros won Colonial in 1960 and that was his last tournament victory until Sunday. He leaped from eighth to fifth place among the money-winners with $27,525.

Boros' four-stroke margin was one of the widest in the tournament's 17 years.

Player leaped into second place in money winning with $36,765.

Jack Nicklaus, the leading money winner at $56,215, favorite here and member of golf's big three, had a closing 70 for 284 for third place and took down $3,500.

Athletics Nip Minnesota, 2-1

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Kansas City pushed across an unearned run in the eighth inning to edge the Minnesota Twins 2-1 Sunday in the first game of a doubleheader.

The second game was rained out when a downpour struck shortly after the end of the first contest, leaving the already wet field unplayable.

Norm Siebern's sacrifice fly scored Jose Tartabull, who had beaten out a bunt single and moved to third as Jerry Lumpe's hot grounder skipped through Vic Power's legs at first for an error.

The Twins threatened to tie in the last of the ninth when Bob Allison tripled with one out.

John Wyatt relieved Dave Wickham and thwarted the rally by getting Earl Battey to ground out and Bernie Allen to pop out.

Sen. Keating Calls For 1963 Tax Slash

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., endorsed a 1963 tax cut Sunday despite the recent pickup in the economy. He said there should be no delay in changing a tax structure "we know to be wrong."

At the same time, Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, said the intended stimulating effect of a tax reduction would be offset by the inflationary effects of high government spending and increases in state and local taxes.

Mickey Wright Wins Louisiana Tourney

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Mickey Wright shot a 3-over-par 75 Sunday for a 54-hole total of 219—the score she predicted would win—and captured the Alpine Civitan Women's Open Golf Tournament by a stroke.

The Blonde Texan, who now has won three of the six tournaments on the women's circuit, shaded Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Prentice missed a 10-foot uphill putt on the final hole in a bid to tie Miss Wright.

Miss Wright had a 68 Saturday on the sunbaked 6,449-yard Alexander Golf and Country Club course for a one stroke lead after an opening round 76.

"Red" Fike blanked the Guards in the nightcap affair.

Wide Search For Airplane Is Fruitless

Woman Radios That Crash Near

An extensive air and ground search was started last night for a small plane which may have crashed somewhere in Garrett County late yesterday afternoon.

The Cumberland Municipal Airport was notified late yesterday afternoon by the Federal Aviation Agency in Martinsburg, W. Va. that a woman radioed she was about to crash near Grantville.

State Police at LaVale also was notified by the Martinsburg Airport that they had heard the woman radio she was about to crash.

Twelve troopers were sent to Garrett County to help search but as of late last night they had not found any evidence of the plane crash. Several troopers plan to continue searching throughout the night.

Seven private planes and one from the Cumberland Aviation Service also took part in the search, but none reported seeing any wreckage.

Airports at Morgantown and Leesburg Va. and Dulles Airport also reported hearing the frantic message by the woman. They said the woman sounded very hysterical and she said one woman already had jumped from the plane.

The Civil Air Patrol at Morgantown told State Police at LaVale, the radio message by the woman came in very clear.

Thomas Fothergill, a pilot for the Cumberland Aviation Service, said he covered the Garrett County section for over an hour after receiving the call about 6:30 p. m.

The woman in the plane last radioed her position as about four miles south of Grantsville and the search was concentrated in that section of Garrett County.

Both Senators Urge Negative Wheat Vote

Both Maryland U. S. Senators are urging eligible wheat growers in the state to vote "no" in the wheat referendum on Tuesday, May 21.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, a Republican, said "The farmer who does not register his vote against the proposed (wheat) plan may be giving away his economic freedom—for all time."

Democrat Sen. Daniel B. Brewster stated "It is a fact, that, in the long run, the supply control program being sought by the Department of Agriculture is calculated to put the government in charge of the nation's farmers."

Congressman Charles McC. Mathias Jr. of the Sixth District also is urging farmers to vote "no" on the referendum.

He said "If farmers are interested in being able to plan their own farm operation in the future they will vote 'no' on this referendum. All farmers throughout America who are interested in preserving their own initiative and their own ability to operate a free enterprise farming community will vote 'no' on this referendum. I hope that they do so because they hold in their hands a very important key to the future of American economic philosophy."

South End Fire Company extinguished a fire yesterday morning in the kitchen of an apartment on Laing Avenue.

Firemen were called to the apartment of Mrs. Ann Lloyd, 21 Laing Avenue, when her stove caught fire.

Firemen said Mrs. Lloyd was moving her stove when a pipe connection broke loose and caught fire. The stove and one wall in the kitchen were damaged by the fire.

The professors have claimed they were dismissed because of their liberal ideas.

Frostburg President R. Bowen Hardesty has said he didn't renew their contracts because three of the teachers were immature and the fourth refused to continue his graduate studies.

Geare Aids Area School

John E. Geare, 829 Windsor Road, local insurance executive, is Cumberland regional chairman of the $300,000 Saint James School Building Fund.

Objective of the fund program is construction of a two-story building to house science laboratories, classrooms and a library. The building fund appeal will be directed to members of the Board of Trustees, faculty, students and staff of the school, parents of past and present students, alumni, friends of the school, corporations and philanthropic foundations where interested. The campaign, which started April 15, will end July 5.

The intruders used a steel bar to force open a door at the rear of the school building and then forced open the door of the principal's office where the money was taken from a small cash box.

The four suspects in the case were arrested by Detective Royce Clayton and Officers Harold Gibson and Joseph Nelson and are being held in the County Jail and in the City Jail.

Bowling Green Sewerage Bids Will Be Asked

Cresaptown Plans In Final Stages

The Allegany County Sanitary Commission last night announced a tentative time schedule for advertising bids for the construction of sewerage collection and treatment facilities for the Bowling Green and Cresaptown sanitary districts.

The commission anticipates asking for bids for the Bowling Green project by the end of the week, and to schedule the opening of bids on June 17, according to Playford S. Aldridge, chairman.

He said plans for the Cresaptown sanitary district construction are in the final stages and that if plans are completed on schedule, bids will be asked within two months.

Meanwhile, the commission is taking several steps this month toward a third sanitary district.

A public hearing has been set May 27 at 7:30 p. m. in the court house by the commission on a petition by 25 Bedford Road area property owners who seek the creation of a sanitary district to provide water and sewage systems for the area.

The commission plans to make use of the Cumberland plant for treating sewage from that area if the proposed district gets the green light at the hearing.

Negotiations are scheduled to begin today between the Mayor and Council of Cumberland and the Sanitary Commission on sewage treatment charges.

The commission will be represented by Robert A. Reinhard, secretary, and Leslie J. Clark, attorney. Louis V. Shinnamon, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, has been invited to participate in the discussion.

The fire was brought under control by crews of Potomac Fire Company No. 1, Westernport, and Tri-Towns Company No. 1, Piedmont.

One fireman, James Cirillo, was slightly burned by hot water. Firemen said the blaze started in the attic and damaged the attic and a back bedroom of the home.

Damage was estimated at $2,000, fully covered by insurance. The alarm was turned in at 1:10 p. m. and the fire was under control 80 minutes later.
